

Wine Judging

Wednesday afternoon, September 15th, on the porch of the old “Central House,” five judges sampled and officially dubbed a white Hudson-Chatham Riesling, Germantown’s Palatine Wine.” In addition, our judges agreed on two other wines from the Hudson-Chatham Winery, Seyval Blanc and Hudson River Valley Red, that will be available at the Oktoberfest Beer and Wine Booth, during the Oktoberfest Celebrations. See: www.germantownny.org for details.

Much thanks goes to Jim Lawlor of Lawlor’s Package Store for three bottles of wine used in the judging, Nancy Kohler of Hudson-Chatham Winery for her contribution of two bottles of wine and for being the official pourer at the event, and Otto Leuschel of Otto’s Market for providing a scrumptious cheese platter along with crackers and grapes, that was used to “cleanse the palate” between wine samples. We would also like to express appreciation to the new owner, Martin Lueck of “The Central House” for providing a charming location for our event.

In addition, we would like to extend special thanks to our five judges: Jen Muirhead, Greg and Donna Fingar of Fingar Insurance, Germantown’s Deputy Supervisor Austin Sullivan, and Joe Fallarino of World Class Beverages, a div of DeCresenpe Distributors, for their willingness to spend a delightful fall afternoon,
